1. Users of our interface will be a few experienced trekkers, who have visited enough trekking websites and also a few inexperienced trekkers who usually don't go as often as the former ones and face hurdles while booking a trek. The reasons behind us choosing this spectrum of users(Ex: Experienced Trekkers would look into the height and weather conditions of a certain location, etc. and the inexperienced ones would look into the date,cost of the location,etc.) is because our goal is to create a site that caters to everyone's needs and provide information that may make a user more inclined to visit our website due it being more efficient and comfortable to use.

2. We'll be interacting with 10 users who are a mix of Experienced and inexperienced trekkers.

3. We'll be regularly interacting with our users through google forms and a common whatsapp group where we'll be posting our prototypes regularly.

4. Our set of questions that we will be regularly asking our users will change every time we make a prototype as every new modification will contain some pros and cons and will ultimately lead to a new set of questions.
   Initially we'll be starting off with the basics, like what the user would like to see, the price or the location etc.
